Level on arrival: A2+

The student has demonstrated considerable progress this week across all aspects of IELTS preparation, showing particular advances in his speaking skills and engagement with complex academic discussions. His consistent participation and growing confidence suggest that an intensive, personalized learning environment is benefitting his development.

Overall Progress and Observations

The student has shown remarkable development throughout the week, particularly in his willingness to engage with challenging material and complex discussions.

The small class size has provided him with ample opportunities for individualized attention and practice, which has clearly benefited his learning. His decision to tackle his first full novel and his subsequent successful presentation demonstrate both academic progress and growing confidence.

His test scores, while showing room for improvement, indicate steady progress across all skills.

The interactive nature of the sessions, combining academic work with engaging discussions during peripatetic walks, has proven particularly effective in developing his English language skills in both formal and informal contexts.

The combination of structured IELTS preparation and broader academic discussions has created a good learning environment for the student.

His growing ability to engage with complex topics, from historical events to contemporary issues like press freedom, suggests that he is developing not just language skills but also critical thinking abilities and an intellectual self-awareness that will serve him well in future academic pursuits.
